DesignVA DesignMornings

Every month, designVA, affiliated with the Branch Museum of Architecture and Design, organizes a gathering of young architects and designers in and around Richmond. They gather to see, hear and socialize about interesting works of design and prominent designers in our area.

This past December, a group had an early morning tour of the Shed at the Main Street Station. Coffee and donuts were provided by one of their sponsors, Gulf Seaboard General Contractors, Inc.

Check out the calendar of events organized by designVA on Facebook and join the fun.

FEATURED PROJECT

interior view

Project: 1717 Innovation Center
Owner: Capital One
Architect: SMBW
Project Type: Adaptive Reuse, Corporate Office Space
Opening: March 2018

Rising above the train trestle for the past 100 years, the former tobacco warehouse at 1717 E. Cary St. in Shockoe Bottom has been transformed into the Capital One 1717 Innovation Center. The 42,000 SF rehabilitation project was designed by SMBW Architects and constructed by Gilbane Building Co. Capital One will occupy the top two floors of office space while the first three floors will be office and coworking space serving as the home of local nonprofit business incubator, Startup Virginia.

In December last year, the Young Architects Forum (YAIF) of AIA Richmond arranged a hard hat tour of the building, led by project architect Rick Fischl and interior designer Melinda Harvey of SMBW. Design concepts as well as many of the complexities of the project were discussed, including the integration of all new building systems into the old, Type IV structure, the use of wayfinding, and sustainability strategies used in pursuing LEED Gold. In addition to office space, the 5 story building was expanded to include an upper level multi-purpose event space and outdoor roof deck with views of the city.
